TOPIC: University of Maryland, College Park: Follow-up Discussion on Application of Differential Pricing

COMMITTEE: Finance

DATE OF COMMITTEE MEETING: June 9, 2016

SUMMARY: During the January and March meetings, the members of the committee briefly discussed a complex issue regarding the effects of tuition differential pricing. Basically, the University applies the differential ($1,400 per semester) to those students who have earned 60 or more credit hours. This practice has resulted in the application of the differential price to those students who entered the University with a large number of Advance Placement (AP) credits. Some of these students have been charged the differential in just their second year (the sophomore year) on the campus. The committee chair requested to further examine this matter at the June meeting.
