Chancellor Robert L. Caret's Statement on New Administration's Higher Education Policy
November 18, 2016

As one of the nation's leading university systems, the USM stands ready to work with the Trump administration as they develop and implement higher education policy. We are currently coordinating with our professional associations in Washington to offer support and guidance to the new administration. As the transition continues, we will strive to keep both the mission of public higher education and support for the students we serve high on the agenda.
